P[illegible]BURGH GAZETTE.

By John I. Scull. No. 55.

Friday, February 13, 1818.

NATIONAL LEGISLATURE.

A message from the president on the 31st ult. brought before the house a correspondence which took place between the secretary of state and Don Luis De Onis on the subject of Mr. Meade; a full consideration of which (says a correspondent of the Alexandria Gazette,) will convince every man who knows the systematic, artful duplicity of the Spanish cabinet, that there is little to be expected of either justice or due respect to our country from that quarter. I am delighted at perceiving clearly, nevertheless, that our executive, though temperate, seems to be peremptory upon the occasion, and little disposed to be bamboozled much longer by his LONG EARED MAJESTY. That HE and his creatures will gratify their pious malignity some months longer by the imprisonment of Mr. Meade is evident—Don Onis' letter does in fact, whatever seeming it may assume, make provision for that; and I cannot help thinking that it is going beyond the privilege of insincerity allowed even to Spanish diplomacy, to talk of just intentions and high consideration for the United States on the part of Ferdinand. Indeed I do not see how we could well put up with such an insult upon the understanding of our government, if Don Luis had not balanced it by an equal sneer at his own. For, surely, a more bitter gibe could not be invented by the demon of satire than dressing up the Spanish magistracy in the attribute of "immaculate purity." Never did a dovecot more tremble at the shadow of a hovering kite—never a Parisian shudder at the name of Robespiere more than a Spanish family at the domiciliary visit, with the terrible word justicia roared at the entry door from the hoarse throat of an a'guazil, an escribano, a corregidor or an alcalde.

Department of State.

The secretary of state, to whom was referred the resolution of the house of representatives of the 23d of December last, requesting the president to cause to be laid before the house any information he may be able to communicate, relative to the imprisonment, and detention in confinement of Richard W. Meade, a citizen of the United States, has the honor of submitting to the president the accompanying papers, received at the department, on that subject; with a letter addressed to the minister of Spain, residing here, since the resolution of the house, and the answer received from him

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

MR. ADAMS TO MR. ONIS.

Don Luis de Onis, Envoy Extraordinary, and Minister Plenipotentiary, from Spain.

Department of State,
Washington, 27 Dec. 1817.

Sir—I am directed by the president of the United States, to invite your immediate attention, and to urge that of your government, to the case of Richard W. Meade, a citizen of the United States, who has been confined since the 2d of May, 1816, in the prison Santa Catalina, at Cadiz.

It has been repeatedly represented to your government, by the Minister of the United States at Madrid, that the imprisonment of this person, was under a sentence of a tribunal at Cadiz, condemning him to pay a second time, a sum of money, which, by virtue of a prior decree of the same tribunal, he had already paid into the royal treasury. This fact has never been denied or contested by your government. It has been proved to them by the attestations and certificates of their own officers.

It was to have been presumed, that upon the first moment that such a fact was emphatically presented to your government, an order would instantly have issued from it for the discharge of Mr. Meade from his imprisonment. The President regrets that after so many and such urgent representations in his behalf by the minister of the United States at Madrid, it should yet be necessary to address this call upon the most common principles of justice to you. I am instructed by him to say, that in renewing this demand for Mr. Meade's immediate liberation, he confidently expects it will not be in vain.

I pray you, sir, to accept the assurance of my very distinguished consideration.

JOHN Q. ADAMS.

MR. ONIS TO MR. ADAMS.

[TRANSLATION.]

The Chevalier Don Luis de Onis, to the Secretary of State.

Sir—I received your note dated the 26th of this month, in which by order of the President, you communicate to me what appears to have taken place in Spain, in the case of a law suit against Richard W. Meade, a citizen of these states, in order that I should make the necessary representations on this subject to the King my master, and solicit his release from confinement.

In compliance with the wishes of the President, and yours, sir, I shall, with great pleasure, make this request in favor of Mr. Mead, although I am not informed of the details of the suit instituted against him, nor of those which have produced his confinement.

Confiding in the just intentions of the King and his high consideration for the U. States, I must hope that his Majesty will attend efficaciously to this request, and use his authority in having justice promptly done to Mr. Meade, that the laws may be observed with the strictest impartiality, and no motive or pretext left to doubt of the immaculate (acendrada) purity which has ever been acknowledged as the particular attribute of the Spanish Magistracy.

I renew my respect to you, sir, and pray God to preserve you many years.

LUIS DE ONIS.

Washington City, Dec. 29, 1817.

On motion of Mr. Smith, of Md.

Resolved, That the President of the United States be requested to cause to be laid before the House such information, as he may posssess, (and which may be communicated without injury to the public interest) relative to the claims of the merchants of the United States, for their property, seized and confiscated under the authority of the King of Naples.

DESULTORY GLEANINGS.

The common fluency of speech, says Dean Swift, in many men and most women is owing to a scarcity of matter, and scarcity of words; for whoever is a master of language, and has a mind full of ideas, will be apt, in speaking, to hesitate in the choice of both; whereas common speakers have only one set of ideas, and one set of words to clothe them in, and these are always ready at the mouth. So people come faster out of church when it is almost empty, than when there is a crowd at the door.

La Colonie in his memoirs relates the following fact. This officer, although a Frenchman, commanded a regiment of grenadiers in the service of the elector of Bavaria. Immediately, says he, after the battle of Denian in 1712, M. De Quemin major of my corps, asked me if he should go and count the number of men in the intrenchments who had been killed during the attack. I consented with pleasure, and informed him that I would accompany him; at the same time a good Bavarian, rather advanced in age, who was a lieutenant in my regiment, asked permission to join us, which was granted. They had not gone far before a number of bodies were found and while employed in counting them, they heard some one moaning. A grenadier of the regiment of Guienne, who had followed to pick up what spoil was left, heard the voice of the wounded man, and approaching him, presented his piece, swearing that he would finish the poor wretch's tortures. Mr. de Quemin turned away the musket and told him to let the soldier die in peace. Sir, said the grenadier, excuse me; I shall render a service to the poor boy, in the situation in which he is, it is best to finish him; and a second time presented his musket. Mr. de Quemin was at last obliged to drive him away by force. My lieutenant, who understood a little French, had heard this dialogue, and addressing Mr. de Quemin, said, perhaps this rascal understands German. I will question him; the wounded man replied in German, and the lieutenant demanded of what country he was; he was answered, Bavaria. What! and serve against your Prince! I find we must kill him. And from what part of Bavaria are you, continued the lieutenant. From the environs of Ingolstadt, replied the other. Who is your father? who are your relations? said the lieutenant. My mother is dead, said he, and I am the only son of an officer who was probably killed at the battle of Hochslet, as I never since heard of him. After that period my relations took possession of his property, and left me in want of every thing, as I grew up, not knowing what to do, I resolved, together with two other scholars, my comrades, to enlist, and we offered ourselves to the first officer we met. What is your name? said the lieutenant. My name is Oudesch, replied the wounded man. Ah, unfortunate boy, said the lieutenant, you are my son; and I should here have been a spectator of your death, even without an effort on my part to have prevented it, if Mr. de Quemin had not succoured you; you have been in a situation to have killed us both if the opportunity had offered, and heaven has now conducted us here to preserve you. The unfortunate young man, though in the most dangerous situation possible, was so transported to find a father whom he had long supposed dead, that he drew himself along the ground, crying out "my father, my father," and embraced his feet so strongly that he was with difficulty separated from him; after being carefully transported to the hospital, he was cured, and entered the regiment as an officer.

Cause of the Fall of Leaves in Autumn.

The simplest Phenomena in Nature are generally those the cause of which is least known. This Phenomenon we yearly witness and pass it over as one too common even to merit attention. The celebrated Carnot well known for his knowledge in Military affairs, is the only person of whom we have read that has investigated this subject. Mr. Carnot first observed that certain Trees begin to throw off their leaves from top to bottom, while others on the contrary as invariably throw off their leaves from the bottom towards the top. He found that in general the species in which autumnal shoots consist of simple prolongations of the extremities of the branches, are first stripped at bottom, and those in which this shoot takes place by small lateral branches, begin to throw off the leaves at top; or in other words, that the last grown leaves are also the last which fall off. He was also astonished that those leaves which ought to be the most tender resisted the frost longest; this proved to him it is not the frost which makes the leaves fall off, but that this fall is a necessary and ordinate effect of the process of vegetation; and that either by the developement of the shoot, or by an interior alteration prepared by nature, the petiole is detached when the progress of its nutrition has brought on the moment when the texture ought to be dissolved which served as its lien. Thus when a tree from any given causes perishes in the season of vegetation, its leaves preserve their adherence.

Anecdote of the late honourable Henry Erskine.—During a theatrical representation at Edinburgh, a presuming young coxcomb chose to render himself conspicuous by standing up in the midst of the pit all through the progress of the first act of the play; his neighbours were at first too polite to insist on his conforming to the usual regulations, and merely represented to him the inconvenience those behind him must suffer, to which he paid no manner of attention; the audience at last began to testify their displeasure and the cry of "turn him out;" became universal, and a riot would most probably have ensued, from the indignation of one party, and the tenaciousness of the other, had it not been for Mr. E. who laying a wager with a gentleman near him, that he would accomplish the matter by a single sentence, stood up and addressing himself to the persons who were about forcing compliance on the obstinate youth, exclaimed "leave him alone, gentlemen it is only a Tailor resting himself;" a roar of laughter followed the exclamation; the efficacy of which was immediately testified, by the disappointed object of it, whose only motive was a desire to impress those around him with a high idea of his fashion and gentility.

LIVERY STABLE.

(Wood street, between Diamond alley & Fifth-st)

George Steward,

RESPECTFULLY informs the inhabitants of this city and its vicinity, that he has opened a Livery Stable, where he intends to carry it on in a manner calculated to do justice to himself and accommodate all others who may please to give him a call, having altered his stable expressly for the purpose, which is inferior to none in the place. He also intends to keep good riding horses to hire—calculated for journeys of any length. Having procured careful managers to superintend the business, he will be enabled to give general satisfaction.

Good saddles and bridles in every case shall be furnished, necessary for the comfort of the rider—when thus caparisoned it is presumed that justice will be done to horses, so justly their due.

Terms of hire and other affairs relative to the establishment, made known at the time of hiring.

He has also laid in an excellent quantity of oats and hay, and feed of every description.

Gentlemen committing horses to his care, may rest assured of unremitting attention in every particular.

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1818.

A law has been passed by the legislature of Kentucky, and signed by the acting governor, incorporating thirty-nine Banks.

MISSION TO CAPE HENRY (HAYTI,)

We understand from a correct source, says the Baltimore Telegraph) that the United States sloop of war Hornet is under sailing orders for Cape Henry, (Hayti) and that an ambassador will proceed in her to demand from the King of Hayti indemnification for sequestered American property.

Cobbett.—William Cobbett is now in Harrisburgh. He has presented a petition to the senate, praying the commonwealth to remit him the amount of a forfeited recognizance; payment of which he believes to have been improperly exacted of him during the administration of governour M'Kean. If this man, (says the Chester Federalist) has a just claim on the Commonwealth, it ought, certainly, to be satisfied—whatever may be his character. If, on the contrary, he is attending at Harrisburg to beg the re-payment of money legally and fairly forfeited to the state—if he is soliciting of the legislature of Pennsylvania, the grant of a large sum of money, from her treasury, as a favor, he ought to wear a face of brass to ask—and the legislature should borrow principles as rotten as his own—to grant his petition. If there is any one man living on earth, who ought to be an object of detestation and disgust to every Pennsylvanian mind, that man is W. Cobbett. Talents of a high order, he undoubtedly possesses.—Prostrated to the vilest purposes, those talents have been employed to slander many of the best citizens of the Commonwealth; and to libel, with brutal malignity, our republican institutions. The line of Pope was never more applicable. Cobbett "the scorn and wonder of our days." What claim can he have to thrust his polluted hands into the treasury of Pennsylvania? As well might every felon, who has been fined and imprisoned for his crimes, or forfeited his recognizance, and left his surety to pay the amount, call at the treasury for reimbursement. But we will not waste a word more on this subject. We have no fears for the issue.

The manner in which the troops stationed at this post have been employed for the last years, is one, among many other substantial reasons for preserving a respectable military force. From 150 to 200 men commenced last year opening the road from this to Fort Meigs, and completed it to the River Raisin, thirty miles from Detroit. About twenty-five miles of this road was previously almost impassable for horses—it can now be travelled with ease with little inconvenience. Several excellent bridges have been thrown over the rivers and creeks which were difficult to ford, from 150 to 300 feet in length, besides many causeways. This year a detachment of about 50 men commenced opening from river Raisin, and completed about sixteen miles. This road is passable all the way without difficulty to Faux Huron, for carriages. Bridges from 200 to 250 feet have been thrown over several creeks, and causeways made. In another year we shall have a good road from Detroit to Fort Meigs, and probably half way through the Black Swamp. The advantages resulting to the inhabitants of Michigan and Ohio, from the labor performed by the United States' troops are certainly very great, and merit, and will receive the warm applause of every friend to the real interests of our happy republic.—Detroit Gaz.

The Legislature of Ohio appears to labor under considerable difficulty with regard to a proper understanding of certain hard words. In a report of some of the late speculations of that honorable body, we perceive that two of the members had a debate respecting the proper meaning of the words "ex post facto;" and in the last "Columbus Gazette," the editor states that an "interesting debate" took place on the meaning of the terms "biannially and triannially." 'Tis a pity that the gentlemen are not blessed with the company of Mr. Douglass, of our super-eminent House of Representatives, who could in a twinkling move to hang the unruly words for contempt, or ask the spouters:—"what will your deliberations come to gentlemen, if you permit such innovations upon your dignity.

Carlisle Times.

The population of the City of New-York, is supposed to consist of about 140,000 inhabitants. The number of deaths, during the last year, are stated in the New-York Gazette to be as follows, men, 765; women, 607; boys, 676; girls, 484.—Total, 2527. Of this number 574 died of consumption.

The following intelligence, decisive of the fate of the unfortunate MINA, is translated from Mexican Gazettes, received in Washington City.

From the Gazette, Extraordinary of Mexico, of November 1, 1817.

SILAO, OCT. 27, 1817.

Most Excellent Sir:

It is with the greatest pleasure I communicate to your Excellency that I have taken prisoner the traitor Mina, together with 25 of his principal partisans, at the post of Benadito, appertaining to the plantation of Flachiquera, where he was stationed with 200 men. Half of them were killed, as well as the ringleader Moreno, whose head I caused to be brought to this place, where I have just arrived. I will send it to General Don Pasqual Linan as soon as possible; and I now anticipate this information to your Excllency, on account of its importance. God preserve your Excellency many years.

FRANCISCO ORANTIA.

His Excellency the Vice Roy.
Don Juan Ruiz de Apodaca.

From Vera Cruz, November 7, 1817.

Besides the capture of Mina, and the destruction of all his band, I have to communicate to you another important event; namely that the ringleader Belgara has just delivered himself up, with all his men, to the royal troops at Puente del Rey, by availing himself of the Indulto published on the occasion of the Queen having been happily delivered of a Princess.

NORFOLK, Jan. 27.

Captain Johnston, of the cutter Flying Fish, who arrived in Hampton Roads on Sunday night from St. Thomas, informs that just before he sailed, a gentleman arrived there from the Main, bringing intelligence that an engagement had recently taken place between the Patriots and Royalists, on the plains of Valencia, in which the former had been defeated. This communication was made to the American Consul in presence of capt J. The names of the commanding officers Capt. J. does not recollect.—

The same gentleman further observed, that preparations were making for a battle, which it was expected would be fought in a few days at Torredos. This battle, it was generally believed, would decide the fate of those belligerents in that section of the country.

BRATTLEBORO', (Vt.) Jan. 27.

Emigration in good Style—Yesterday the inhabitants of this village were not a little amused by the appearance of a vehicle, which strikingly reminded them of what the scriptures tell us of Noah's ark. It was drawn by eight stout oxen, accompanied by one horse and sleigh, probably intended as a tender, and several cows, calves, &c. which were doubtless very serviceable appendages; as we noticed, in its passage, many smiling little faces collected at the windows—while the "gently ascending smoke" from the projected chimney's "top," denoted a cheerful paternal hearth beneath. As this "way-worn" habitation made no tarry in this place, we did not learn "whence it came," or "whither it was going," but suppose it is destined to the "land of promise."

York, (U. C.) Jan. 8.

About a quarter past five o'clock in the evening of Wednesday the 31st. ultimo, a luminous body was observed in the air, which exploded in front of the Town, with two loud reports and a strong blaze of light. The light and reports were so instantaneous, that although the noise was very generally heard, few persons agree in the description of its appearance and course.—Having only heard the noise, we are not able to describe the meteor, if it was one; some supposing that it was a mass of ignited matter thrown from the burning mountain at the head of the Lake. Exactly at the same time of the year in 1795, a shock of an earthquake was felt here, when a large portion of the table rock at the Falls of Niagara was thrown down; at this time however, as far as we can learn no tremor of the earth was felt.

The legislature of Georgia passed at their last session, an act prohibiting the introduction of slaves into that state for the purposes of speculation. Six citizens of Putnam county have given notice, in the newspapers of that state, of their determination, if the public officers should fail in their duty, to enforce "a law sanctioned by every principle of justice, humanity, policy, and interest." In this good work they earnestly invite the co-operation of the citizens of the other counties; which it is hoped they will receive, as they merit. Such associations at once confer honour on the individuals composing them, and discredit on the public officers in the part of the country where such measures are necessary to give efficacy to the laws of the state.

In the house of delegates of Virginia, the committee of finance has been instructed to enquire into the expediency of taxing, in some way, the branches of the bank of the United States established in Virginia, or what other measures it may be proper to adopt in regard to those Banks.

ANECDOTE.

During the operation of the Orders in Council, an American merchantman was boarded by a British frigate and a strict examination of the crew of the former was of course ordered. As the search proceeded an Irishman belonging to the merchantman came forward with all the confidence imaginable to establish his claims to a Yankee origin upon knowledge derived from conversations with his messmates.

Where were you born? asked the English officer.

In Charliston—plase your honour.

Charliston!—where's that?

It is handy on to Boston, plase your honour.

And do you know where Nantucket is? asked the officer.

Och! Nance Tucket it is you mean—I know her very well, and a big jade she is—but what has become of her I'm not able to say.

This reply brought poor Paddy into the long boat.—Nantucket Mag.
